PASS HOUSING BILL Labor Provision Stricken Out as Measure Goes to Roosevelt

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Hundreds of small business men trying to out-talk and out-shout each other endeavored Wednesday to set down what they think President Roosevelt should do to improve business.

Scores tried to talk at once, voted to ban speeches when they couldn't, and forced Secretary Roper to shout through a loud-speaker in a vain effort to restore order.

The scene followed soon after Fred Roth, Cleveland shoe wholesaler, was elected permanent chairman. Roth suggested the "little fellows" have a permanent advisory council similar to the business advisory council which represents the larger interests.

In the senate, opponents of the anti-lynching bill invited its supporters to take the floor in behalf of the measure.

Britain's Robot Ship Will Find No Peace

FORMSOUTH, Eng.—(AP)—Britain's robot warship Centurion is going to have a troublesome year.

During the spring, she will be fired at by every ship in the Mediterranean fleet. In the summer and autumn, ships of the home fleet, aircraft and home defense forces will practice bombing and gunnery on her.

While under fire the Centurion will be without a crew, and will be controlled by radio from a destroyer some miles astern.

Officers and crew, when they board the vessel after bombardment, often find their cabins ruined by shell-fire.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The State Utilities Commission Tuesday granted two rural electrification cooperatives permission to construct 363 miles of lines to serve approximately 1000 customers in five counties.

One, the Southwest Electric Co-operative corporation, Texarkana, was given a permit to build 156 miles of lines to serve 400 customers in Miller and Lafayette counties.

Only $150,000 of the amount has been released to carry out the project in Miller and Lafayette counties. The commission said it would issue a temporary order for the remainder of the project, making it permanent when the funds were made available.

Light Line Urged J. V. Moore and W. E. Jones appeared before the council and asked for the erection of a rural electric line from J. E. Schaefer's store to a point two miles north. This matter was referred to the water and light committee for immediate action.

Mr. Jones, who is a rural mail carrier, asked improvement of a road that connects DeAnn and old 67 highway with the Blevins highway. Mr. Jones said he delivered mail to 33 boxes on this stretch of road which is about three-quarters of a mile long.

Dr. C. M. Lewis, negro physician, asked the council for aid in carrying on a campaign in Hope to cure negroes afflicted with venereal diseases. Dr. Lewis, who is working in connection with the Southern Liberal organization, said "I have given much of my time as well as money to aid my own race and now I feel like I should have some help."

Of the negro maid and cooks working for white persons in Hope and who were examined by Dr. Lewis, 50 per cent were found to be afflicted or showed traces of venereal diseases, the negro physician said.

Lewis was requested to ascertain the amount of money he needed for this work, and to report to a later meeting of the council.

The council discussed the possibility of erecting a new fire station and automobile testing station combined. No figures were submitted. No definite action was taken.

Three New Traffic Lights Proposed by City Council

Stop-Lights Would Be Erected Along Third Street, Highway 67

SIDEWALK PROJECT Cost of 50-Foot Walk, With WPA Aid, to Be Approximately $19

The police committee of the city council Wednesday had under advisement the need of three additional "stop and go" traffic signs on Third street.

The three new signal lights possibly will be erected at Third and Washington streets, Third and Elm streets and Third and Edgewood.

The matter of safety for school children as well as pedestrians crossing this street was discussed by the council Tuesday night, and the police committee was requested to ascertain the need and cost of erecting the three new signal lights.

It was brought out that tourist traffic over this road is heavy. Automobile drivers were reported to be speeding at the intersections of Third and Washington and Third and Edgewood, increasing the hazards for school children and endangering the lives of others as well.

New Sidewalks Planned City Treasurer Charles Reynerson reported that the WPA had approved a work project which paves the way for more than 1,000 feet of new sidewalk in the residential area.

Property owners will be required to pay for materials, with the WPA furnishing the labor. It is estimated that a property owner can now obtain 50 feet of sidewalk at approximately $19.

Property owners are required to make a deposit with Mr. Reynerson before the project is started. Reynerson said more than 1,000 feet was planned by three property owners.

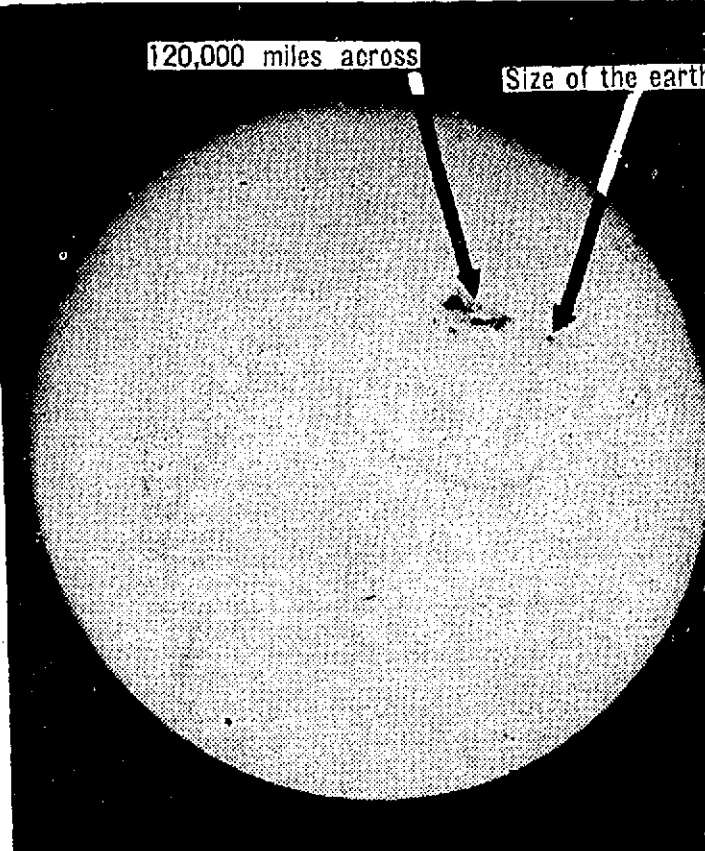

Persons interested in having new sidewalks constructed in front of their property may consult Mr. Reynerson. The council voted to employ George Wiggins as a helper to Walter Huckabee of the street department at a salary of $60 per month. The salary of Henry Simpson, who now obtains 50 feet of sidewalk as trash hauler, was fixed at $95 per month, the same figure that Stephenson was paid.

Police Chief John W. Ridgill filed his report for January which showed: Arrests 29, fines assessed $232.50, cases dismissed 6, fines suspended none, cases appealed none, prisoners assigned to street work to pay for fines $190.50, cash collected from fines $42, cash collected from trash hauling $84.50, cash collected for telephone $15.50, total cash collected $328.

Chief Ridgill also was instructed to make a check on automobiles without safety driver's stickers. It was reported that approximately 2,000 cars in the county had been tested. License issued last year for Hempstead county cars totals about 3,000.

Light Line Urged J. V. Moore and W. E. Jones appeared before the council and asked for the erection of a rural electric line from J. E. Schaefer's store to a point two miles north. This matter was referred to the water and light committee for immediate action.

Glimpsing Sol's 'Spotted Fever'

Old Sol was broken out in rash spots visible to the naked eye and one group of which covered an area 120,000 miles long and 60,000 miles wide when this remarkable picture was taken in Cleveland by Dr. J. J. Nassau, director of the Warner and Swasey Observatory of the Case School of Applied Science. Dr. Nassau estimated the sun spot to the extreme right to be 10,000 miles in diameter, larger than our entire earth. Appearing in a cycle of about 11 years, sun spots are actually gigantic tornadoes in which masses of white-hot gases as large as the whole earth are blown about with terrific velocity.

Schultz's Lawyer Seized by Police

Prosecutor Attorney Says Davis Was 'Legal Brains' of Mob

PHILADELPHIA, Pa.—(AP)—J. Richard (Dixie) Davis, long sought by Prosecutor Thomas E. Dewey as leading heir to the late Dutch Schultz's 100-million-a-year policy racket in New York, was arrested here Wednesday.

Pennsylvania state police and Dewey aides seized Davis, who was personal attorney for Schultz, slain gang leader, in Schultz's many scrapes with the law.

Davis was described by Dewey's staff as the "legal brains" of the Schultz mob.

Oil Companies to Drill in Red River

Land From Fulton to Louisiana Line Is Under Lease

LITTLE ROCK—With the renewal of oil drilling activities the past year thousands of acres in the main channels of five principal rivers in Arkansas have been leased from the state by individuals and oil companies under provisions of Act 321 of 1937 which prohibits drilling of oil and gas wells in river beds without obtaining a lease from the state.

The drilling permits in river channels are issued by the state Revenue Department without charge, and leases are restricted to 1,000 acres to each person or company for one year. They may be renewed if a showing can be made 30 days before expiration of the lease that progress is being made for test wells on the leases.

E. R. Richardson, supervisor of the severance tax division of the Revenue Department, said the state has leased practically all lands in the Red river from Fulton, Hempstead county, to the Arkansas-Louisiana line and in the bed of the Ouachita river from the Arkansas-Louisiana line to Camden. The same is true, he said, in the St. Francis river from the Mississippi river up Crowley's Ridge to Mississippi county. Heavy leasing is being carried out on the Mississippi and Arkansas rivers.

LITTLE ROCK—(AP)—The State Claims Commission Wednesday allowed N. P. O'Neal, of Hope, the full amount of a $565 claim for damages incurred when his automobile collided with another machine on a state highway.

O'Neal claimed the state highway sign said "Curve, Turn Left," when the curve actually turned to the right. He said he followed the sign and collided with another car.

He had been justice of the peace in Ozark township for more than 30 years. He had been ill about five weeks, but was active until then.

Born in North Carolina, August 14, 1859, he came to Arkansas when a young man. He first lived near Emmet, later moving to near Washington. Surviving are his widow, two daughters, Mrs. A. J. Arrington and Mrs. W. A. ### Highway Body to Elect February 16

John Vogel Is Bailey's Choice as New Commission Chairman

LITTLE ROCK—(AP)—The State Highway Commission will reorganize here February 16, electing a new chairman to succeed Hendrix Alphin, El Dorado, resigned.

W. W. Mitchell, new state highway director, called the meeting following a conference with Vice Chairman Paul W. Sheridan of Fort Smith. Mitchell, named to succeed James R. Rhyne, took office Tuesday.

Gov. Carl E. Bailey has indicated his desire that John Vogel, El Dorado newspaper executive who succeeded Alphin on the board, be elected chairman. Mitchell said the commission also would receive bids at the meeting on a $55,000 grade crossing elimination project on state highway 59 between Genoa and Deatur in Benton county. The crossing to be eliminated is over the tracks of the Kansas City Southern railroad.

The new director said no changes in department personnel were planned "at present."

Koc Declares Jap Ill-Treatment of Westerners Is Intentional

GENEVA, Switzerland—(AP)—The council of the League of Nations closed its 100 session Wednesday after adopting a resolution asking the league powers to aid China.

Two nations, Poland and Peru, abstained from voting. Dr. V. K. Wellington Koo, Chinese delegate, declared maltreatment of Americans and Europeans by Japanese soldiers in China had been an intentional step in the Japanese plan to drive Occidentals out of the Orient.

Appealing for aid, he insisted it was the league's duty and "opportunity" to discourage Japanese aggression in China.

By the Associated Press In Tokyo Wednesday Japanese Foreign Minister Koki Hirotsu declared "a state of war exists between China and Japan."

His statement was not amplified. In seven months of hostilities Japan has made no formal declaration of war.

British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden summoned the French and Italian ambassadors to confer on emergency measures to end marauding by submarines on Mediterranean merchant shipping.

Resignation of Marshal Werner von Blomberg, German war minister, was authoritatively disclosed, but official announcement was withheld. There were indications he had incurred the displeasure of the Army Officers Corps by making a carpenter's daughter his second wife.

The Spanish war appeared to be at a standstill; but in the Orient Chinese reinforcements moved up to plug a gap in the southern defenses of China's "life-line" corridor.

Kidnaping Report Is Declared Hoax

Murfreesboro Wife and Brother-in-Law Found With Relatives

NASHVILLE, Ark.—(AP)—Sheriff P. G. Coker said Tuesday night the reported kidnaping of an invalid woman and her brother-in-law near here Tuesday was "a hoax" and that the two had been found safe at Allen, Okla.

Bub Woodall, Murfreesboro farmer and husband of the woman, told officers his wife and his brother, Luther Woodall, were kidnaped by three hitchhikers they picked up while driving from Murfreesboro to Oklahoma. He said the three forced him from the car.

"I traced Luther Woodall and Mrs. Bub Woodall to Allen by telephoning around in this vicinity," Sheriff Coker said. "They are over there visiting relatives." Bub Woodall started with them but got lost somewhere in the shuffle.

"I talked to a man over at Allen who went over and talked to Mrs. Woodall. There was no kidnaping. I don't know where Bub Woodall got that idea."

CRANIUM CRACKERS

Detectives Paul Gallagher and Adrian Stopka inventoried the room.

The body of Louis Trimble lay in the center of the room, partly under an overturned card table. Poker chips, cards and broken highball glasses littered the rug. Clutched in the dead man's left hand was a pipe; his right held a penny box of matches. A revolver was on the floor at his side.

Five chairs, three of them overturned, surrounded the card table. Detectives decided to hunt the four men who had been playing with Trimble. They were easy to find—the night clerk in Louis's apartment building supplied their names.

Questioned separately, their stories varied except in one respect—all swore Trimble had cheated; that he had threatened to kill all four of his accusers and that someone in the party (they didn't know which one) had fired in self-defense.

Fancy a Nation With No Daily Newspapers

ONE of America's favorite indoor sports is criticizing the newspapers. Writing letters to the editor seems to be the hobby of a good many citizens, and a lot of the letters are directed at the newspaper itself, or its writers. Let a comma be misplaced, a word be misspelled, a statement be not quite accurate, and there always are plenty of persons eager to point out the error. Even the President takes a crack at the newspapers occasionally when their policies don't coincide with his.

BUT what if there were no newspapers? What would happen if a time suddenly came when citizens no longer could obtain their evening, morning, or weekly papers for a few pennies?

The good people of Portland, Ore., can answer that question. A typographers' strike closed down all three newspapers in the city and for five days Portland squirmed.

Here are some of the results of the lack of newspapers: Business was adversely affected because stores couldn't advertise.

Sports events had to be canceled because they could not be announced. The same was true of club and society meetings.

Dogs, pocketbooks, and jewels stayed lost because there were no "lost and found" columns.

Firms which wanted to hire workers were unable to do so because neither could advertise.

Absurd and exaggerated rumors were rife because there were no newspapers to publish accurate information.

As only the high-spots of the news were broadcast, the populace knew few details of the Sino-Japanese war, the congressional situation, and other events.

No one knew what shows to go to because the theaters couldn't advertise.

Newspaper readers in Portland complained vigorously because of discontinuance of comic strips. When last saw a paper, Wash Tubbs and Cap'n Easy were trying to rescue an heirloom from an island. Readers wanted to know whether they got away.

Thousands of regular and part-time workers were affected by the forced shutdowns, both in the newspaper plants and allied industries such as paper mills, engraving firms, ink wholesalers, and advertising agencies.

BEFORE the Portland newspapers reopened, residents found out what a tremendous amount of service, both paid-for and gratuitous, newspapers really give.

Those who write letters to the editors may well pray, even as they place pen to paper, that the newspapers will continue to take criticism in their stride and keep on plugging away at the sometimes thankless task of going to press every day.

Item Vetoes

TRY to take away from Congress some of its "sacred" prerogatives and the cry which goes up from the Capitol dome sounds like the wail of the banshee.

President Roosevelt tried it the other day when one of his legislative lieutenants pushed through the House an appropriation bill rider giving the President power to veto individual items in an appropriation bill without disapproving the entire measure.

It didn't work, of course (22 Presidents before Roosevelt have tried it unsuccessfully), because a Senate committee promptly killed the rider.

But give Mr. Roosevelt credit for a commendable attempt. Congress is always sending him regular appropriation bills filled with private claims riders which he disapproves but can't veto without killing the whole bill.

Maybe some day a President will get the measure through. At least, the taxpayers may live in hope.

Reducing Through Diet Is Merely Matter of Calorie Bookkeeping

(No. 139)

Repeatedly in this column it has been emphasized that the matter of controlling weight is, in most cases, simply physiological bookkeeping. When a human being lies in bed doing nothing, he uses up about 11 calories per pound per day. If he exercises lightly he uses 20 calories per pound per day. If he plays football, tennis or engages in other sports, he may use 40 calories per pound.

A man who weighs 150 pounds will, therefore, use 600 calories a day when he is working hard or 2500 calories a day if he is working around an office or a store and from 1500 to 1600 calories a day if he is at rest.

Since women weigh on the average less than men, a woman weighing 120 pounds will use about 1800 calories a day if she is hard at work but only 1200 calories a day if she is a lady of leisure.

If we want to reduce weight, we use less calories each day than the amount necessary to provide for the work that we do. However there are other factors necessary to keep in mind if you want to keep your health.

The stomach requires a certain amount of material on which to work. A complete liquid diet, therefore, may affect seriously the processes of mastication of the stomach and digestion.

If a woman who wants to reduce regularly uses 1200 calories a day and wants to take 200 calories per day less she can drink ten glasses of milk each day which will give her exactly 1000 calories.

However, even though milk is the most nearly perfect food, she will fail to obtain adequate amounts of iron, vitamin C and vitamin D as well as the necessary bulk. Thus she is more likely to harm her health and digestion than otherwise.

Two eggs would make 150 calories. Ten six eggs a day she could reduce but she would hardly be getting much satisfaction out of her diet. Twelve oysters make 100 calories, but no one would want to eat 144 oysters as a means of supplying the day's requirement of food.

If, however, one would wish to take exactly 1000 calories per day, it would be possible to add them up as follows:

Milk	one glass	100
Bread	one large slice	100
Eggs	two	100
Small sirloin steak	1 1/2 ounces	100
Potato	one	100
Butter	one glass	100
Figs	one serving	100
Baked apple	7 ounces	100
String beans	2 servings	50

Mystery Cruise

Spinach, one serving ..... 50
Thus one would have a great deal of food and still be on a reducing diet.

Financiers Tardy in Rescuing Near-Ruined Movie Companies

HOLLYWOOD—Short takes: Bob Hope's definition of Palm Springs is "Newport with coyotes." Since Martha Raye's divorce from Buddy Westmore, it's unhealthy, when she's around, to hum, sing or whistle "My Buddy."

For months now, movie production has been at an all-time low. Studios have stars and commitments with exhibitors, and should be very busy. But many of the big companies operate on shoestring financing and can't go to work until eastern bankers put up more money.

Meanwhile, the financiers who have milked picture company stocks and otherwise contributed to the near-ruin of at least three studios, are wary about coming to the rescue.

CHAPTER XXV

"To give away your millions!" Bret looked at her now, repeating what she had told him. There was incredulity in his dark eyes, amazement.

"Yes," Connie met his dark look squarely, unflinchingly. "I have a plan worked out; nearly completed. It is what I want to do. The only thing that will make me happy. I had hoped that you would help me, Bret."

He did not answer. She supposed he still did not believe her. He thought that this, too, was some wild impulse.

"I have thought it out as carefully as I could," Connie continued. "As wisely, I hope. The money will be divided into various trusts and foundations. Some for colleges; one here, in this country for these mountain people; some for hospitals. I thought I would like to build churches, like this one—her eyes went to the tall thin steeple of the little white church that glistened in the last rays of the setting sun—in rural districts. Then there could be health clinics for all those oppressed and in need. And a laboratory to study and fight the diseases that are the root and cause. Oh, there's so much we can do with this money; a whole lifetime of working and planning and building together. . . ."

"Together? Did you say 'together'?" Bret spoke for the first time.

"That was what I hoped, Bret. What I still want. Though, if you can't, if you won't, I shall go on with the plan, alone."

"It is a wonderful plan," he said slowly. "A beautiful plan. But are you sure you mean it, sure you won't regret it?"

"I told you that Constance Cort is dead!" she cried, impatiently. What more could she say, what more could she offer? She had given him all that she had, not only in worldly possessions but her heart, the self that was truly she. If he could not believe in that, accept it. . . .

"I am as sure," she said, "as I am that we are standing here, together, Bret—on the top of our hill. As sure," her voice faltered, but she must go on, though he might not wish to hear it, she must be as brave as she had told Rodney she would try to be—"as sure as that . . . I know I love you."

"But you told me that you loved Rodney Brandon? Only so short a time ago."

HOW could he be so stern, so cruel? Her love, then, meant nothing to him. Yet she was not ashamed of it, not sorry she had laid her heart at his feet. She was glad and proud that she loved this man before her.

"It was a lie. Said to hurt you. A pretense, like all the rest of my life. The part before I ran away and met you and really came to life in these hills. The part when I returned and pretended to be the richest girl in the world, again. Yes, and the most spoiled, most selfish, most unthinking. That girl was never really I. Can't you see, Bret, I would not have run away from her, seeking something, if I really had been that girl in my heart? I could not have lost that same heart to you, found the only happiness I ever knew, living the good life, the simple life with you beside me. I would not be offering you all that I have, all that I am—if what I say were not true. But as I've told you, I've grown up. I'm through pretending. I shan't change again, Bret, though you won't forgive or believe in me."

He did not say anything for a moment; then he turned toward her, and now his eyes looked into hers, deeply, searchingly, as only Bret's eyes could, causing her knees to go weak beneath her, her heart to hammer painfully.

"I told you," he said "that I had something to tell you—that night, when you said you were going away—I wanted to tell you that I was going away; to ask you to go with me. I had secured a new contract to build a road, further west than this, but in country not unlike this, either. I wanted to ask you to build a new life with me, to make our home, have our children. . . ."

"Oh, Bret!" She held out her hands to him in a pleading motion. "Why didn't you ask me then? Why didn't you make me go? Why didn't you tell me?"

"You told me that you loved Rodney Brandon. That was the only thing that made me agree to set you free. Love can't be chained, you know. Nor purchased at any price. Besides, I loved you too much to hold you, if you did not care for me."

"YOU loved me too much. . . ."

But now — was that love dead, hopeless? It must be or he would have told her. She put her hands before her eyes, turning away her head. She must not let him see how much he hurt her. She had only herself to blame, if she had killed his love. She should be the one to suffer.

"Yes," Bret said. "I loved you too much. More than myself, more than life. I still love you—in that same way — as I always shall. Connie. . . look at me! It isn't much that I have to offer, only my love, but if it's enough—I'll give it all to you. In exchange, darling, for your wonderful plan. Which we will carry out, together."

She took her hands from her face, looked at him as though she could not believe what he had just told her. Such a flood of joy swept through her, such unbelievable ecstasy that she wondered if she dared believe him.

"It won't be easy," Bret went on. "To carry out this plan or to make our marriage over. We will have to work at it. We will have to make it endure forever and ever. Not a small task, any of this that lies before us. But we can do it, I'm sure of that. Not alone, sweetheart, but as husband and wife. We can begin again—together."

"That is enough," Connie said. "Much more than enough. Why, don't you know?" her laughter rang out on the fragrant night that now enveloped them, her eyes looking into his were unafraid, her sweet face radiant, "now I am the richest girl in all the world, Bret, darling!"

He took her in his arms, then his lips met hers in a kiss that was solemn, yet infinitely tender. He said, "And I am the richest man, dear heart."

One of the nudies in the floor show of a Hollywood night club is named "Newport with coyotes." The rival singer, Billie Burke, and the Hotel Astor in New York has a waitress named Gloria Swanson.

Pardon him!

Anachronism Department: In "Bad Man of Brimstone," saga of the stage-coach days, when Cliff Edwards sang a lugubrious ballad called "Save the Last Grave for Me," I was astonished to see that he was accompanying himself on a tenor banjo of modern days. Not only that, but a tenor banjo tuned like a ukulele.

Then along came "In Old Chicago," and in the 1911 part of it Alice Faye sang "Carry Me Back to Old Virginia." James A. Bland's minstrel ditty wasn't written until about 20 years later.

Cold Storage

Paramount hired Jack Dunn away from Universal with the idea of making a skating picture this winter. It also figured on hiring Sonja Henie's skating troupe after the completion of "Happy Landings."

But she took the skaters on tour, and they'll work with her at 20th-Fox when they return. So the rival production is still on ice, and Mr. Dunn is still cooling his talented heels.

Gene Fowler is back at movie writing, after all. His job is "The Real Glory" for Gary Cooper. Katharine Hepburn will have another try at Broadway, in the Theater Guild's production of "Jane Eyre."

Steve Clemente, the dark and hulking Yaqui whom you've seen heaving axes in circuses, earned $500 in five minutes by missing Francis Lederer with some heavy knives. Lederer didn't trust him, and donner armor under his clothes.

After weeks of indecision as to what color her hair should be, and how it should be coiffed, Ann Southern finally cracked under the strain and has been wearing wigs.

RAISING A FAMILY

By Olive Roberts Barton

Spare Child Family Cares—Airing of Troubles Upsets Young Unjustifiably

Raising A Family (No. 3)
It is not very wise for mothers and fathers to keep all family affairs a secret from the children; but I believe that many children know too much about matters they are too immature to understand. I hope you agree.

For instance, in a small house where the family is pretty much bunched together, it is very hard not to mention to Jim that the refrigerator man has been around again and you hadn't the money. Maybe you even add that if

Jim can't produce the cash at once, the nice new ice-box will be carted back the way it came. And Johnny or small Kay, listening in, refuse to eat their dinner. They know nothing of business or the scheme of collections, but they suffer none the less. Or perhaps all the more.

Wrecks Feeling of Security

Older people usually have some way out in their minds, or if they haven't they face it and accept it as just one more blow that life deals out every now and then. But children don't analyze to this extent. They add things on and make themselves miserable.

It may be money matters, or it may be something else. Perhaps daddy says, "If this arthritis of mine doesn't get better soon, I'm going to be out of work."

Suddenly the world seems to slip right from under the children's feet. We say glibly that children don't worry, just because they don't say much, but they are indifferent to family welfare. But this is not true. One thing children have I observe, and this is a feeling of security. Thanks to the delvers into mental hygiene, we know this to be true.

Children have to have a consciousness of security or they do strange things. They don't go out and jump off bridges, but they react in their own way. Maybe they won't study or they won't get up, or they won't stay at home. Again they may stop absorbing the nourishment from their food even, though they eat well enough. Or they just get cranky, or cry a lot. These things, of course, can result from other causes than worry over the future, but I think the light needs to be turned on this contributing factor of behavior problems.

Let Temperament Guide

Many matters are the affairs of parents, only. Again, however, conditions need not all be secret. Children cannot escape all knowledge of trouble, nor should they, because it must be ingrained in them that life means effort, sacrifice, setbacks and what not. The common cause should count. It is as foolish to let them live in a fool's paradise as to burden their unprepared shoulders with unfair loads. But age, as well as temperament, should be counted in when parents are having their discussions in the hearing of the family. And, of course, careful consideration of the subject to be aired.

When there is only so much money to be spent, it won't hurt children to be aware of necessary economy, and to help as best they can. It is not a good thing for either parent to complain in the open too much, but it is not fair either to pretend a non-existent flushness. But you know all this, I am perfectly sure. I do give credit to all the wise parents of the world, who try so hard to judge exactly the things a child should know.

NEXT: Children Need Both Parents.

A Book a Day

By Bruce Catton

Fascism Is Japan's Difficulty.

Japan's drive for an Asiatic empire is due neither to the pressure of "overpopulation" nor to security of food stuffs. On the contrary, it is the product of two unnecessary and unwelcome things: a desire for power on the part of her militarists, and a thirst for greater profits on the part of her big industrialists and financiers.

So says James A. B. Scherer, an educator who lived in Japan for many years, in his book, "Japan Defies the World" (Bobbs-Merrill; $2.50).

What ails Japan, says Mr. Scherer, is Fascism, it is Fascism flourishing in its own homeland—for the famous Shogunate, a dictatorial combine which ruled the land for some centuries prior to Commodore Perry's arrival, was a Fascist set-up that Mussolini himself might have admired.

In addition, the author continues, there is evidence that the masses of Japan are by no means solidly behind their self-appointed masters in the present war. As long as February of 1936, a group of peasant-born soldiers revolted in Tokyo as a protest against the powers of the ruling clique; last spring, the voters rejected the clique's political candidates by overwhelming majorities.

How, then, are the people held in line? By the device of emperor-worship, says Mr. Scherer. The emperor is a puppet, who has no more actual power than the king of England; the ruling clique controls him, and because the bulk of the populace still venerates him as of divine origin, it has so far been able to impose its will.

That it can continue to do so indefinitely, Mr. Scherer doubts. Troubles, he says, are piling up; ultimately, they may cause an explosion which will blow the empire asunder.

MRS. SID HENRY

TELEPHONE 321

Sun down and moon up,
And one star over the hill,
The evening—clear as a crystal globe,
And very still;
A white light and a glow,
Very low in the Eastern sky
There is a moment when rosy fires
Ede and die.
Sharp on the deepening blue
A black spire pierces through,
And the only sound I hear
Is a boy's voice calling clear—
High and clear on the air
To a comrade—lost somewhere.
I think I shall not mind
When my brief day is past,
If only I shall find
My sight unblurred at last,
If only I may hear,
High on the evening air,
A comrade calling me
From over the way somewhere,
Sun down, and the coming night!
But surely I shall not fear
If one lone star leads over the hill,
And that last hour is clear.

To Hike WPA Rolls to Two Millions

Government Acts, Trusting Business Will Improve by Spring

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Works Progress Administration fiscal authorities decided Tuesday to "shoot the roll" on winter employment and trust that spring will bring a business boom to absorb the thousands who will have to be cut off their rolls then.

Aubrey Williams, acting WPA administrator, said that because of increasing demands, work-relief enrollment would be expanded to approximately 2,000,000 by the end of the fiscal year, then would be progressively curtailed to about 1,500,000 by June.

This, officials said, would require an outlay of around $134,000,000 in February compared with an average of less than $100,000,000 a month during the first half of the fiscal year. Since WPA spent from July to December, inclusive, $562,332,925 of the $1,050,000,000 set aside for 1937-38 work-relief, they said that thousands added to the winter pay roll would have to be dropped in the spring and summer to keep expenditures within the budget.

Enrollment, which averaged less than 1,500,000 a month during the first six

$100,000 Offered for First Oil Well

Reward Expected to Spur Hunt for Oil in Mississippi

JACKSON, Miss.—(AP)—One hundred thousand dollars reward for an oil well!

Senator Mack Young said this prize would bring a feverish hunt for the thus-far elusive liquid in Mississippi.

Senator Young proposed in a bill introduced in the legislature to give the governor authority to draw $100,000 out of the state treasury and pay it as a prize money to the first person bringing in a commercial oil well in Mississippi.

A similar proposal was made to the legislature two years ago but received little support.

Henry N. Toler, state oil and gas supervisor, said the hunt for oil was already underway, "but no doubt Senator Young's prize would spur other activity."

Prohi Repealer Is Passed in Georgia

Package Store Bill Goes to Governor—Local Option Is Provided

ATLANTA, Ga.—(AP)—The Georgia house passed and sent to Governor E. D. Rivers Tuesday a local option bill repealing Georgia's 20-year-old dry law. The vote was 105 to 85, two more than the constitutional requirement of 103 votes.

The measure, providing for package sale by private stores in counties voting wet, already has been approved by the senate. House Speaker Roy Harris announced the governor would sign the bill.

The house made no changes in the senate measure which was substituted for a previously passed house bill calling for a repeal without a vote in 15 counties. The bill provides for county elections on petition of 35 per cent of the registered voters, the election to be set by the county within 15 days after such a petition is presented. Counties calling no elections remain dry.

The current special legislative session was called to raise revenue to finance Governor Rivers' "New Deal" program which includes old age pensions and increased public health and educational expenditures. So far these needs have not been met.

STORIES IN STAMPS

PUT LAUGHTER INTO PAINTING

LIFE in Holland in the 17th century was no drab affair for Frans Hals, first of the great Dutch masters. He lived it zestfully and he put his spirit into the brush. He was a laughing artist who recorded human laughter in almost all its forms.

From his "Laughing Cavalier" to his "Laughing Boy" Frans Hals painted a long gay line of people. A shrewd fellow, he caught the character of his subjects and their laughs were wholly genuine. Hals seemed to dab about carelessly but ever faultlessly.

But portraits were not his only work. From time to time he executed large pictures of his native Haarlem Town Hall of which his masterpiece is the "Reunion of the Officers of the Archers of St. Andrew." He made his last two group paintings when he was past 80.

As he grew older the color left Hals' portraits and a succession of beautiful grays set off his black and whites. He never lost his old freedom, however. Born in 1580, Hals died in 1686. His "Laughing Boy" is shown on a current Netherlands stamp issue of five values.

A. B. Belcher, president of the Batesville White Sox, Inc., announced Tuesday on his return from St. Louis, that the local club had signed a contract with the Browns. The major league outfit named Elmer Kirchhoff, a St. Louis shortstop, to be player-manager of the local team.

Holding onto the reins is all right. It's fine sport for those who suspect that they can out-think and out-argue a donkey.

Hot Springs Loses Two Tilts to Hope

The Trojans were leading, 18 to 10, at the half.

It was a heartbreaker for the Trojans, who were in the lead until the last 15 seconds. Godwin of Hot Springs, scored 19 points. Baker of Hope was runner-up with 15.

In the afternoon game Hope took a long early lead and never was in danger. Furtle of Hope, forward, was high with 21 points. Godwin led the locals with 14.

The PAYOFF

By HARRY GRAYSON
Sports Editor, NEA Service

A Phi Beta Kappa scholar, with a West Point background, assumes the duties of football coach at the University of Oregon next fall.

And the results should be very interesting when General A. (Tex) Oliver starts moving in Pacific Coast Conference circles.

Oliver played his first big-time football at West Point after the World War, under "Cap" McEwan. He gained entrance to West Point via the examination route after many months with the doughboys in Europe.

This big six-footer has coached the grid game nearly half of his 38 years. And the Pacific coast is not new territory. For four years he was stationed at Santa Diego high school and then put in seven more at Santa Ana high school, sending many a prep star to coast schools.

At Santa Ana, from 1930 to 1932, Oliver's high school charges won 21 straight games. This reputation landed him at the University of Arizona where in five years his football teams won 32 games, lost 11 and tied four.

During the 1937 season, the Wildcats won eight games and lost two. Notable victories were over Kansas, 9 to 7, and Oregon, 20 to 6. It was the beating his team gave Oregon that brought him attention at Eugene.

Thirst for Knowledge
Following his West Point days, Oliver attended summer sessions at Stanford and University of Southern California, where he earned his B. A. degree in 1930. He also earned a Phi Beta Kappa key, which bespeaks his scholastic record.

Born in Atlanta, Nov. 21, 1899, Oliver received his early education in Georgia but starred as a high school athlete in Houston and El Paso, Texas. He was a four-sport letterman in interscholastic competition, participating in football, basketball, baseball and track.

On his first visit to Eugene, Oliver impressed everyone with his keen sense of humor and fluent manner of speech. He proved that even the life of football coach needn't be too serious.

Monday morning quarterbacks — those ever-helpful alumni who meet on Mondays to diagnose Saturday's errors — fail to worry him.

In Tucson we had a club called "Town Cats" — about 300 of 'em — which met once a week and discussed the game. We showed pictures and had a lot of fun.

He admitted he borrowed the idea from Minnesota's Bernie Bierman, and that it kept the wolves from growling if he lost a game!

Holds Clinics for Public
Oliver has another plan to aid in his "public relations." It's a "football clinic," to which the public is invited to witness passing, running and punting contests.

"The contests create a lot of interest in the team," he claims, "and the public learns to know the players personally."

As to his particular style of play, Oliver characterizes his coaching as "versatile attack," and lets it go at that.

In offering Oliver a three-year contract at $6000 annually, Oregon broke a long precedent.

At the present time, Oliver is president of the Pacific Coast Football Coaches' Association.

New Field House to Be Dedicated

Razorbacks Tangle With TCU Teams at Fayetteville Friday

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. — The largest crowd ever to witness a Razorback basketball game is expected to crowd the new field house here Friday night when Arkansas and Texas, Christian University tangle in a Southwest Conference game that will feature the dedication of the new $150,000 structure.

The dedication program will begin at 7 o'clock and will consist of a concert by the Razorback band, introduction of former Arkansas athletes back for the occasion, and an address by Hugo Bezdek, Arkansas coach from 1908 to 1912 who is generally credited with starting the Razorbacks on the up-grade in intercollegiate competition.

Bezdek came here in 1908 shortly after his graduation from the University of Chicago where he was an All-American fullback. His first season here showed five victories and four defeats. In 1909 Bezdek coached Arkansas' only undefeated eleven, the team winning seven straight games and rolling up 186 points to 18 for their opponents.

Another good season in 1910 showed the Razorbacks winning seven games and losing one, with a total score of 221 to 17. The 17 points is still the best all-time Arkansas defensive record. Bezdek's 1911 team won six, lost two and tied one game. The team scored a total of 266 points, which is still the Razorbacks' best scoring record for a single season.

Bezdek closed his Arkansas career with the 1912 eleven that won four games and lost six. He went to Oregon State and later to Penn State. At the present time he is coach and manager of the Cleveland Rams. Friday night he will see Jim Benton and Ray Hamilton in action, two Razorbacks who were drawn by Cleveland in the annual pro draft.

The basketball game Friday night is expected to furnish plenty of fireworks in spite of the fact that Arkansas is in first place in the Conference standings and T. C. U. is at the bottom.

Since 1924 when the first Arkansas-T. C. U. basketball game was played, the Razorbacks and Horned Frogs have met 28 times on the court. Arkansas winning 19 games and losing nine. The rivalry between the two teams has usually been close, no less than seven games having been decided by a margin of one or two points. The Razorbacks' biggest win over the Horned Frogs was in 1929, a 66 to 26 victory. Their worst defeat at the hands of T. C. U. was a 15 to 30 licking in 1926. T. C. U. has not defeated the Razorbacks in basketball since 1934.

Leading the Arkansas attack Friday night will be Don Lockard, the Batesville Beauty, who has amassed a total of 184 points in the 14 games the Razorbacks have already played. Lockard, captain of the team, has tallied 80 field goals and 24 free throws. Close behind Lockard in scoring is Jack Robbins, whose 60 field goals and 37 free throws give him a total of 157 points to date.

Other members of the Arkansas squad have scored as follows in the four conference and 10 non-conference games to date: Brady, 61; Martin, 51; Hamilton, 50; Chambers, 28; Benton, 20; Smith, 17; Donaldson, 14; Hagood, 11; Thorpe, two.

The Razorbacks' total score in 14 games to date is 599 against opponents' 467, an average of 43 to 33 per game. Arkansas players have poured 236 field goals through the net and have tossed 127 successful free throws.

Says Four-Minute Mile Impossible

Sidney Wooderson of England Will Attempt to Set Mark

By JERRY BRONDFIELD
NEA Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK.—Say what you will about the possibilities of a four-minute mile, but Brutus Hamilton, veteran California track coach, only sits back and chants: "Don't care how close they come. It can't be done."

Hamilton's outburst is prompted by Albert Hill's claim that not only is the four-minute mile possible, but that it is within reach of Sidney Wooderson, the slightly built, bespectacled English law clerk who set a world mark of 4:06.6 last August.

"Wooderson might accomplish the trick on your fast Princeton track," insists Hill, British Olympic star of 1920, who trains the record holder. "You must realize our dead English cinders are fully four seconds slower than your American layouts. Thus, I should be permitted to say that Sidney's 4:06.6 of last summer easily is equivalent to 4:02 on any of your lightning-fast tracks."

"Nor is the damp English climate conducive to record performances. Give Wooderson a calm day, moderately warm weather, keen competition, and a fast track and you'll see some real running."

Hamilton, who is both a scientific and practical expert on longdistance running, continues to shake his head in a very negative manner.

"I've made quite a study of the human body's capacity to combat lactic acid poisoning, the toxic cause of fatigue. And my fatigue graph shows that 4:01.6 is the absolute limit of human performance for the mile run. This is close to four flat, I'll admit, but it just can't be reduced further. After all, there must be a limit of human endurance, and we are approaching that deadline," says Hamilton.

The Technical Aspect
"Glycogen, stored in the fibers, is the fuel which drives our muscles. When a nerve impulse reaches the muscle the glycogen undergoes a reaction, heat is liberated, and the waste product is lactic acid."

"When a muscle becomes saturated with lactic acid it stops. Oxygen, supplied by breathing, burns up some of this waste and replenishes the glycogen. Eventually, however, the lactic acid gets the upper hand."

"It's the runner's task to postpone this as long as possible, and that's why he learns to control his breathing, and works for nerve stability to insure a slow, even heart beat."

But the British claim athletic science is still in its infancy. Improved methods of training and following pace, rather than physiological progress, will bring the mile down to four minutes, they contend.

Means Blistering Pace
That means traveling at a 15-mile-an-hour clip; averaging 440 yards a minute; or covering 22 feet every second. Therefore, the six and six-tenths seconds that separates Wooderson from the four-minute mile is the equivalent of only 48 yards.

Somewhere along the mile route, Wooderson, Archie San Romani, Glenn Cunningham, or any of the great millers whose marks hover around 4:07, would have to pick up 48 extra yards.

The fastest first quarter ever turned in by a miller was 58 seconds by Norman Taber. Jack Lovelock's 62.2 is tops for the second quarter. Cunningham turned in the fastest third quarter with 61.8. San Romani's 56.8 is the fastest final quarter.

That composite mile would read 3:58. If Sidney Wooderson could maintain that blistering pace he would have two seconds to spare.

But Brutus Hamilton snorts and says it can't be done.

Britain will complete three 35,000-ton battleships this year.

Schoolboy Rowe to Try for Comeback

To Report for Spring Training—Sore Arm Believed Gone

EL DORADO, Ark. —(AP)—Lynwood Thomas Rowe, former "schoolboy" pitching star of the major leagues, hopes to come back for Detroit this year.

Spending the winter at his home here, he said he would report for spring training at the Lakeland, Fla., training camp March 6 and would appeal to Baseball Commissioner K. M. Landis for reinstatement if his arm performs up to his expectations. Then he'll talk contract with Detroit.

Rowe said the only apparent cause of the failure of his right arm last year was a curious, rainbow-shaped chip about half-inch long, on the point of his shoulder. He denied widely-circulated reports that there was a bone growth on the shoulder. He said that the shoulder troubled him in 1933, his first year with Detroit. He fielded a bunt laid down by Mickey Cochran, then catching for the Philadelphia Athletics, and injured his shoulder while trying to make the throw to first while out of position. He failed to finish a game during the remainder of that year but came back in 1934 to win 16 straight.

The ache returned last year, Rowe said, and he was forced on the voluntary retired list after losing four games and winning one.

Wearing overalls and surrounded by his dogs after returning from a hunting trip, the "Schoolboy" said he was in near perfect condition. He was beaming because two-and-a-half-year-old Lynwood Jr. had outgrown the southpaw tendencies he exhibited a year or so ago. The youngster has developed a neat right-handed "whip" and his father believes that he is a "natural."

BIRTH OF A SONG

"SWEETHEARTS" (Movie)
By Sigmund Romberg and Rita Johnson Young

His parents wanted him to be a bridge builder, but the family background of Sigmund Romberg was too melodic, and he took to music like the well-known duck.

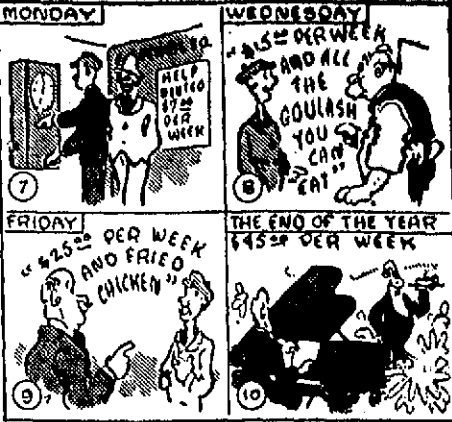

At the age of fourteen, Sigmund Romberg had mastered nearly every playable instrument and was already conducting school orchestras and bands.

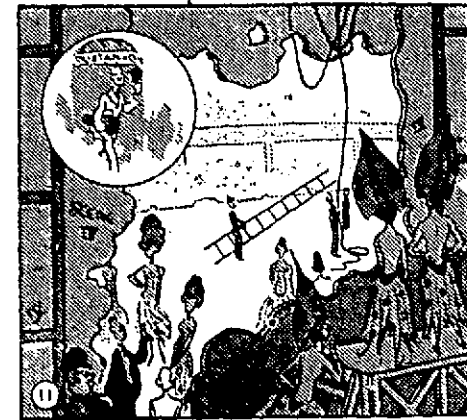

As a youth he was always hanging around back stage and rubbing shoulders with the great in musical circles. At twenty, he joined the army and became involved in the Balkan war. After nine months more of service he left for America.

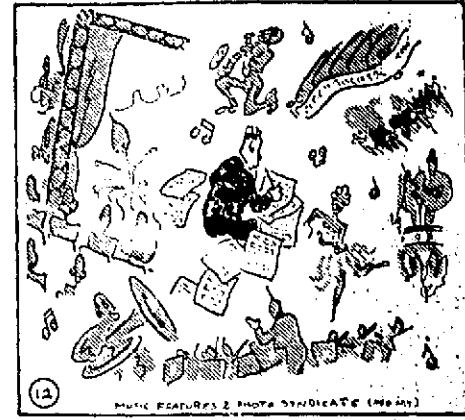

From ASCAP Files
By Joseph R. Fleisher and Paul Carruth

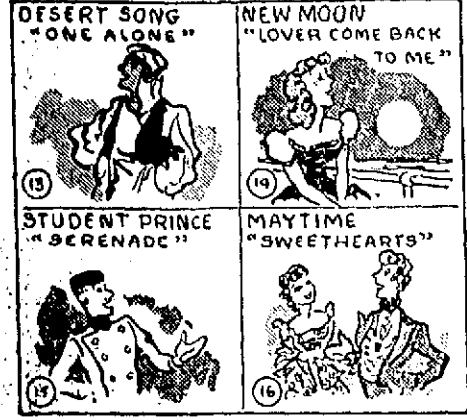

America really proved the land of opportunity for the young composer. From pencil patcher to cafe musician in a week—he made the trip from Second Avenue to Broadway in less than a year.

After several years in various Broadway cafes and restaurants, Romberg became a leader—his own boss. He performed in Bustanoby's by night and watched rehearsals of his first Broadway show, "Whirl of New York," by day.

Romberg wrote sixteen Winter Garden shows in a row, among them several Al Jolson successes, and six other productions, including "Maytime."

Waltzes in the tempo of Vienna—melodies inspired by Strauss, Lehar and other Danubians flowed from his prolific pen. Motion pictures and radio called him.

Romberg is proud of his membership in the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, his position as Assistant Treasurer, and his membership on the Board of Directors. He is active in the struggle to protect the rights of other composers and authors.

Your emotions in America are easily inflamed. Many chances of such incidents as drew you into the World war arise in an aerial war like ours, and you will probably be dragged, however unwilling, into it.—Dr. Hu Shih, Chinese statesman.

It is time business and the government end their witch hunt and cooperate in an atmosphere of tolerance to end the trade recession.—Louis E. Kirstein, Boston merchant.

We, the Women

By Ruth Millett

Real Unselfishness—Those Who Give Unstintingly of Ideas Are Most Generous

"The trouble with so many people is that they are stingy with themselves," a well-known cartoonist remarked the other day.

He started telling me about a brilliant man who is generous with his ideas, his experiences, and his ability to start other people thinking along new lines.

After you've spent an evening with him he stays with you for days," is the way the cartoonist finally put the man's personality into words.

That is what is wrong with most of us. Why we lead such narrow lives. And why we get so little joy from our daily association with people.

We are downright stingy with ourselves. If we weren't we would discard the screens we hide behind and let the world see us as we really are. Modesty, or Sophistication.

We would contribute ideas to conversation instead of throwing in a few words or taking no part at all.

We would give our attention to others' talk without reserving our corner of our minds for thinking up our next remark, or for thinking about something else entirely.

Our first impulse would be to share our amusing experiences, our interesting discoveries with other people. Instead of giving them only the gloomy story of our small misfortunes and petty grudges.

We wouldn't call time waster that was spent in good talk or in getting to know another human being. Being a little careless of the time we give to others is one way of being generous with ourselves.

We wouldn't expect or want more of associations than the stimulation of another person's ideas and beliefs. Even though popular "success preachers" are eternally testifying to the financial rewards of friendly associations.

If we would put our stinginess of self aside, we, too, might stay for a while in the mind of one we have left.

Immigrant Colonies Keep Frontier Alive

NEW YORK.—(P)—"Frontier" characteristics are usually found in immigrant colonies of unskilled laborers in America, according to a social study of Pittsburgh published by the Columbia University Press.

These are usually a saloon, dance hall and boarding house. Chief center of such a community's life is the hall, used for weddings and other festivities.

The halls are found in every community in Allegheny county where nationality groups live in sufficient numbers to finance such an enterprise the study shows.

Calotabs Help Nature To Throw Off a Cold

Millions have found in Calotabs a most valuable aid in the treatment of colds. They take one or two tablets the first night and repeat the third or fourth night if needed.

How do Calotabs help nature throw off a cold? First, Calotabs are one of the most thorough and dependable of all intestinal eliminators, thus cleansing the intestinal tract of the virus-laden mucus and toxins. Second, Calotabs are diuretic to the kidneys, promoting the elimination of cold poisons from the blood. Thus Calotabs serve the double purpose of a purgative and diuretic, both of which are needed in the treatment of colds.

Calotabs are quite economical, only twenty-five cents for the family package, ten cents for the trial package.—(adv.)
